MHHS Presents Profiles in Awareness

As each student develops his own personality, he contributes to the total image of his school and community. In 1969, the MH student body created an image of intensified consciousness, Profiles in Awareness. The alert student body searched outside MHHS for knowledge, entertainment, and involvement. Students acknowledged themselves as a part of the school, but valued their individualism. Obstacles challenged the students to prepare themselves for the hurdles of tomorrow.

The bus, still the major form of student transportation, carries sleepy passengers to school.

Viewed through the fisheye lens, the Madison Heights building seems to bulge with activity.

The Pirate mascot leads the team through the "M" Club aisle, a familiar sight to hardwood fans.

Students Become Involved in Activities

An alert student body searched outside MHHS for knowledge, entertainment, and involvement. In the fall, Pirates were hit by '68 election fever. Students looking for ways to overcome race and age barriers became involved in city-wide work forces. Students sought recreation and relaxation from the tedium of school. Summer and after-school jobs kept enterprising pupils busy. A well-informed '68-'69 student body was aware of and influenced by the good and the ugly of the world outside.

Barb Anderson, Sherry Dyson, and Beth Faris participate in Youth Sunday worship services.

Outside MH

Inmate Mike Ford calls the reformatory rehabilitation program "a ship without a rudder."

Monitor Kathy McMahan signs passes for Mike Phillips, Nancy Campbell, and Earlie Dixon.

Geometry student Robert Winkler and Mr. Roy Blount examine a geometric equation.

Senior Gary Johnston strums "Sounds of Silence" in the peaceful solitude of his room.

Understanding Grows Through Friendship

Karen Humphrey and Greg Graham enjoy a few minutes together between morning classes.

Students acknowledged themselves as a part of Madison Heights, but recognized and valued their individualism. Influenced by relationships with others, they developed fuller personalities. Instructors and students realized a dual responsibility for learning in class, but students found many lessons were to be learned outside classrooms. Students tried to accept each other for the best of what they were, disregarding varying backgrounds, to form a unity among the MH student body.

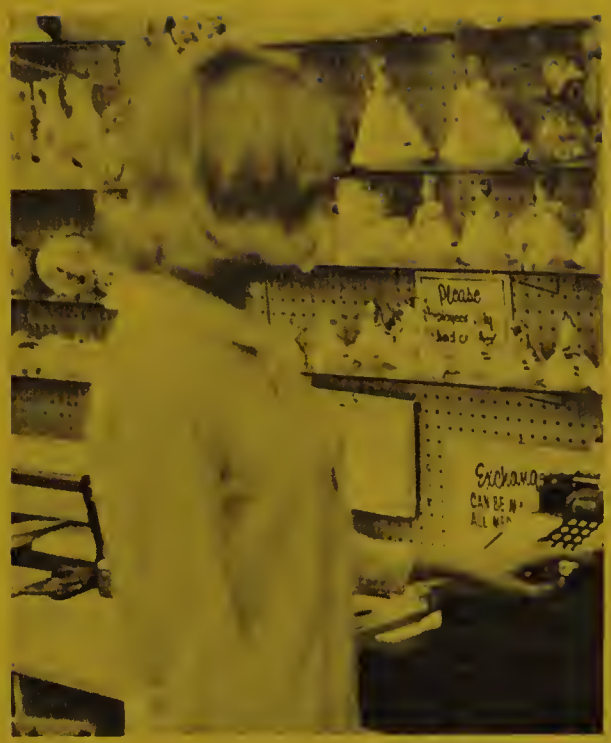
Tomorrow Challenges MH Youths Today

Obstacles encountered during 1968-1969 challenged MHHS students to ready themselves for the hurdles of tomorrow. Unable to overlook the turmoil of today's world, youths resolved to work toward creating a better tomorrow. Tomorrow will see Pirates acquiring educations, fighting wars, securing jobs, and supporting families. Madison Heights' students realized that by observing and learning from the world today they could find a worthwhile place in the world tomorrow.

Roger Shoot crosses Anderson College campus outside the O. C. Lewis gymnasium.

Senior Ed Hale stops at an army recruiting poster, reminder of a pressing obligation.



While working at a local gift shop after school hours, Cheryl Gates rings up a sale.

Tom McCord and Rhonda Dale take a step toward tomorrow with the choice of a ring.

Cynda Tatum fills out her application for Ball State outside the senior counseling office.

Academic Excellence Merits Recognition

Scholastic honors were earned for overall and concentrated effort. The 1969 valedictorian and salutatorian outranked 425 classmates. Students in the next eight positions rounded out the traditionally honored top ten. National Merit Scholars and Letter of Commendation winners placed in the second and fifth percentiles on the National Merit Test. Boys' and Girls' Staters attended mock governmental sessions. Literary Poetry winners' poems appeared in the National Anthology of High School Students.

BOY'S AND GIRL'S STATE REPRESENTATIVES—Gary Hoover, Frank Donaldson, Don Gemberling, Dave Gephardt, Susie Yates, Bob Dishmond, Chris Ainsworth, Beth Faris.

SALUTATORIAN—Helen Ann Bauer.
VALEDICTORIAN—Jennie McKinney.

LITERARY POETRY WINNERS—Lee Ann Edwards, Polly Trimble, Nancy Ruff.

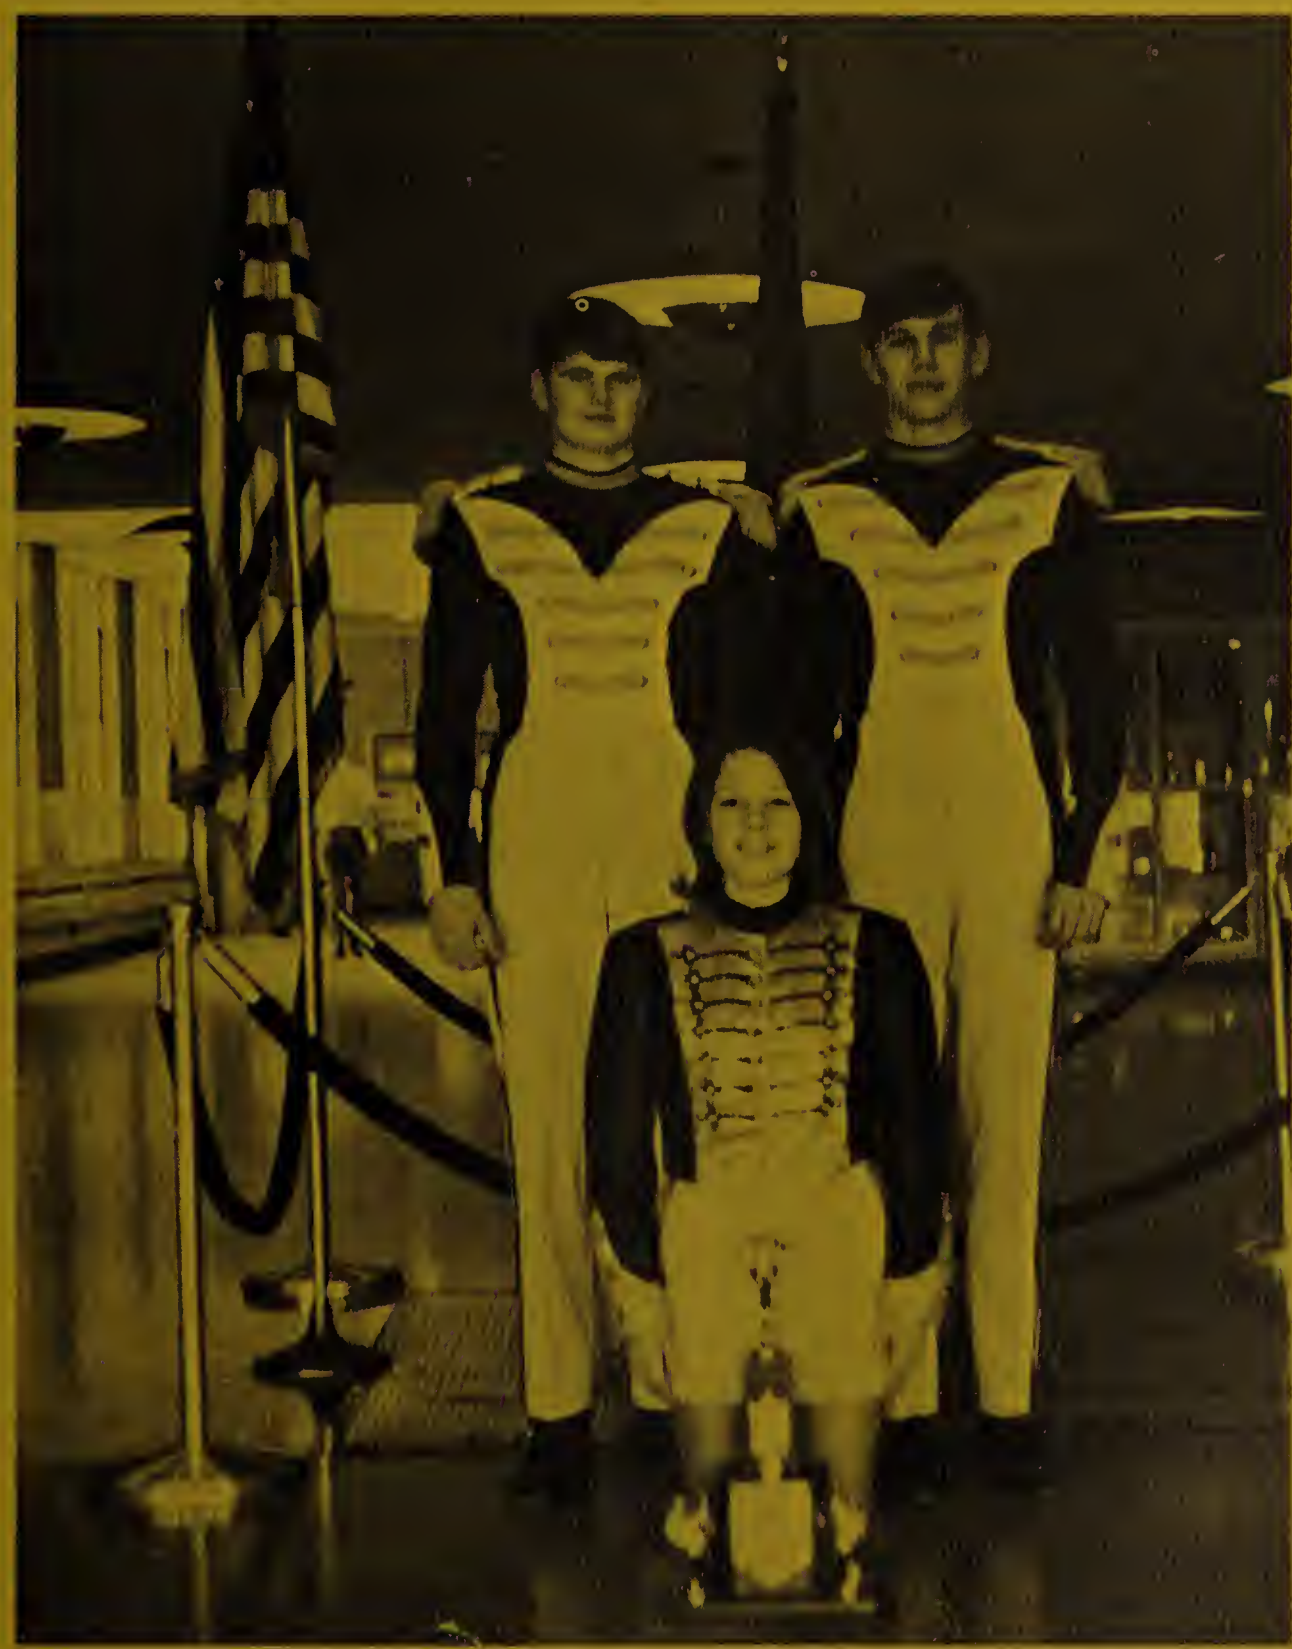
Students Win High Organization Honors

Organizations named Pirate student leaders to responsible positions. Publication editors assumed responsibilities for providing news coverage through the newspaper, literary works in the yearly magazine, and a composite of the year in the yearbook. Sousa and Arion award winners and Head Majorette and Drum Majors gained recognition within the Music Department. Student Exchange Club sponsored three MH students abroad and hosted one foreign student in 1968-69.

TREASURE CHEST EDITORS—Suzahn Huffman, Candy Dunkin. JOLLY ROGER EDITOR—Bob Dishmond. BUCCANEER EDITOR—Peggy Biddle.

ARION AWARD WINNER—Lynda Sears.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENTS—Sakhi Sakhawertz, Linda Graves, Kyle Carner, Candy Dunkin.



HEAD MAJORETTE—Kathy Lewis. DRUM MAJORS—Don Mellenthin, Bruce Matter.

SOUSA AWARD WINNER—Keith Hoffman.

MH Royalty Reign Over Special Events

Five Pirates reigned as MH sovereigns during 1968 and 1969, representing the school with personality, appearance, scholastic achievements and spirit. The crowning of the Homecoming Queen was the climax of all Homecoming activities. The Treasure Chest Queen took her throne as the MH all-American girl at the annual Treasure Chest soc-hop. Reigning over basketball tournament festivities were Miss Scarlet and Mr. Black. The 1969 Prom Queen ruled over "It Happens Every Spring."

1968 HOMECOMING QUEEN—Sally McMahan.

1969 PROM QUEEN—Debbie Byrne. ATTENDANTS—Karen Humphrey, Carol Bollinger.

MISS SCARLET—Gayle Hite. MR. BLACK—Dick Caplinger.

1969 TREASURE CHEST QUEEN—Cynda Tatum. ESCORT—Frank Donaldson.

QUALIFIERS FOR STATE SWIM MEET—Tom Wohlberg, Charlie Earhart, Mike Withers, Curt Farran.

WRESTLING SECTIONAL WINNER—Steve Gourley.

"M"—JACKET WINNERS—Curt Farran, Frank Donaldson, Brad Childes, John McCord, Neal Rector.

1968-69 MH Sportsmen Rate Distinction

Madison Heights sportsmen brought various honors to the MH student body. Each team selected outstanding players for the season. Outside renown came for a state championship golf team, two tennis sectional winners, one wrestling sectional winner, and four qualifiers in the state swim meet. The highest honor a Pirate player attained was an "M" jacket, awarded to five boys in the 1968-69 season for lettering in three sports in three different seasons.

STATE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP TROPHY—Mickey Dehority.

TENNIS SECTIONAL WINNERS—Frank Wood, Kevin Zirkle.

ACADEMICS

Language Department Increases Student

Loquacious students peruse vocabulary tests during Mrs. Coramae Simmon's Composition class.

Becky Stark listens attentively as Mrs. Elva Mae Hamilton explains a passage of the textbook.

Word Power

Madison Heights' Language Department, headed by Mr. Edward Van Horn, supplied students with the opportunity to learn to use words effectively.

Students gained greater working knowledge of English through new texts. Upperclass MH'ers had the opportunity to study World Literature as an elective.

Foreign languages armed students with word power in different tounges. In addition to French, Latin, and Spanish, the first year of German was offered at MH.

Composition classes focused on the techniques and mechanics of writing. Vocabulary study sheets and tests encouraged students to broaden their reading vocabulary.

Speech classes drilled upperclassmen in the art of speaking effectively. A variety of speeches trained students to use specific methods to gain a desired effect.

Seventh period speech class finds Becky Stuart demonstrating how to bridle and saddle a horse.

Miss Gerda Gogolin, German I teacher, explains German phonetics to her second period class.

Econ Becomes Social Studies Requisite

Ambitious upperclassmen elected a newly-offered course on the History of Religion and Philosophy. Beginning with a comparison of world religions, Mr. B. C. Smith led the class from the classic philosophers to the contemporaries. Free expression through hearty discussions and term papers made students enthusiastic about the novice course.

Seniors found that the sociology requirement had been changed to economics. U.S. Government was also a senior requirement. Juniors were occupied in U.S. History, while sophs tackled either World History or Modern Nations.

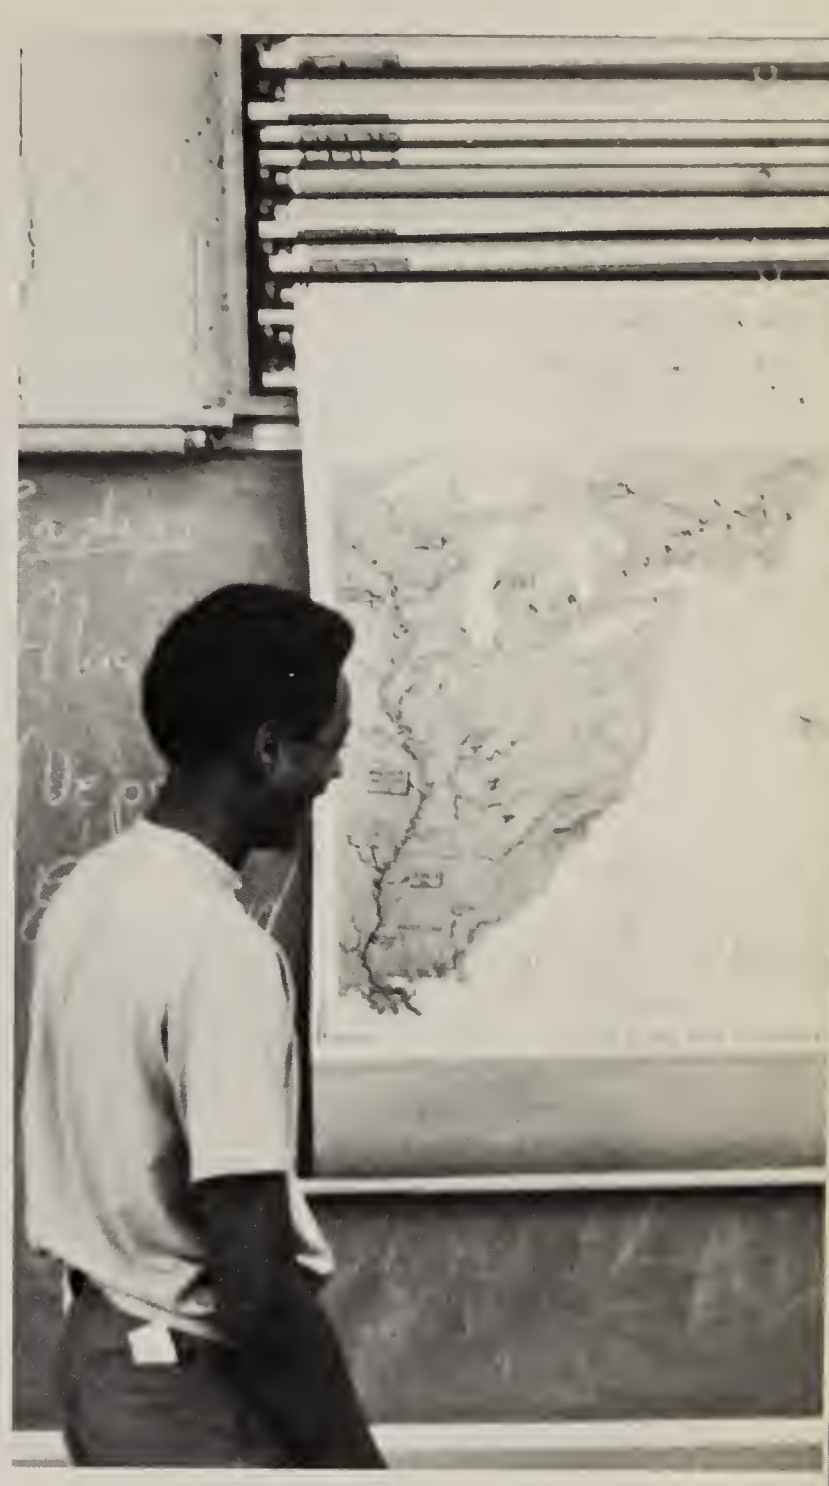
Ron Kinsey participates in a test of mental aptitude devised by his psychology teacher, Mr. McLain.

Mr. Riffe smilingly observes Patty Fischer and Karen Humphrey's report in U.S. History.

While supervising discussion groups, Mr. B. C. Smith presents a point for consideration.

New Class Studies Faiths, Philosophies

John D. Oakes, social studies teacher, gives instruction to one of his students in Economics class.



Earlie Dixon studies the physical features of the U.S. during World Geography class.

MH's science department was divided into 10 courses. General Biology classes examined primitive forms of life, while Advanced Biology explored more complicated forms. Zoology pupils gained knowledge by dissecting animal structures.

Physiological Biology students investigated the laws of the biological world. Graphs and charts aided Anatomy pupils as they probed into the operations of the human body. As a class, the lab assistants made experiments in molecular bio-chemistry.

Chemistry students learned the classifications and combinations of the elements. Wearing safety glasses, the pupils performed numerous experiments. The Physics classes investigated energy and matter transformations. The novice physicists studied scales and inclines.

Carmen Williamson shows surprise as Rick Whitaker pricks her finger for a blood sample.

Physics teacher Basil Mason gestures pointedly while delivering a lecture to one of his classes.

Zoology student teacher Miss Kerr assists two soph class members in determining their blood type.

Students Profit from 7 Science Offerings

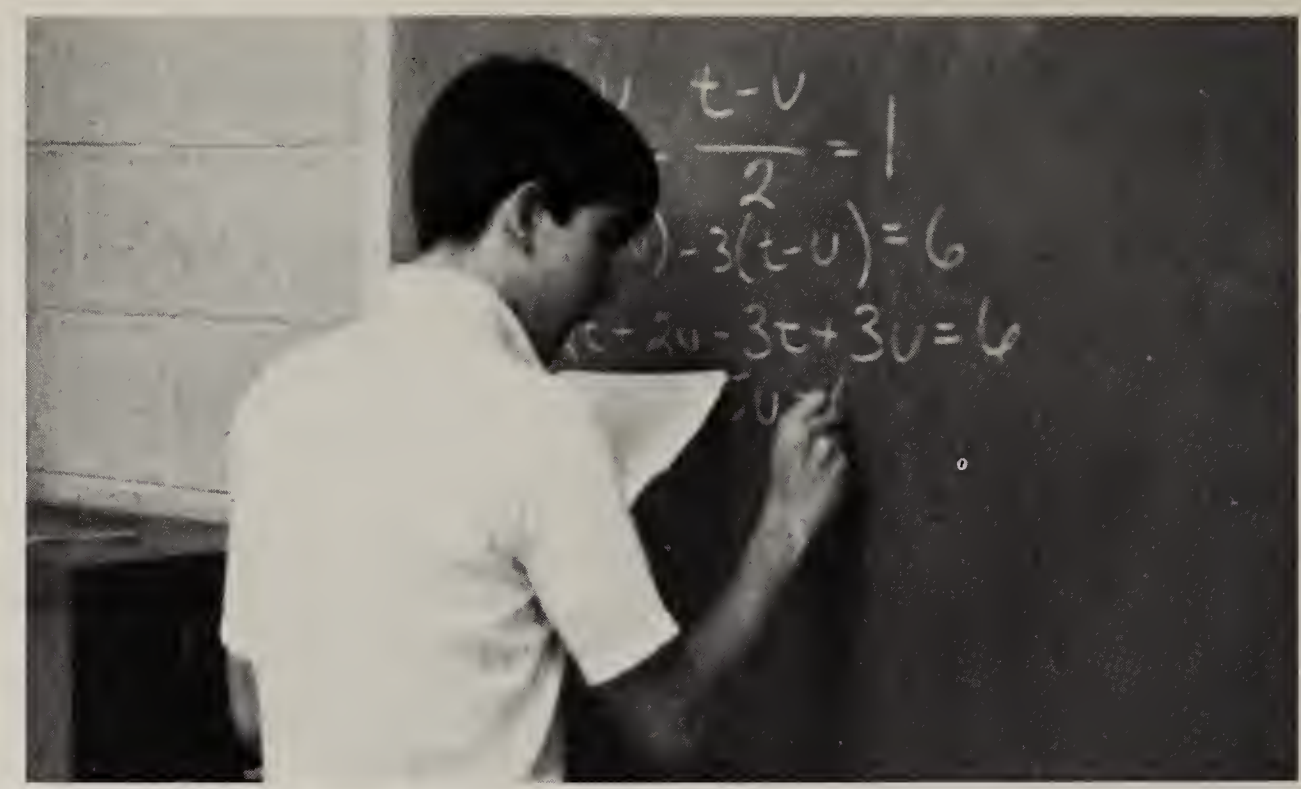
By experimenting, Sara Nottingham and Linda Gibson probe into the mysteries of chemical laws.

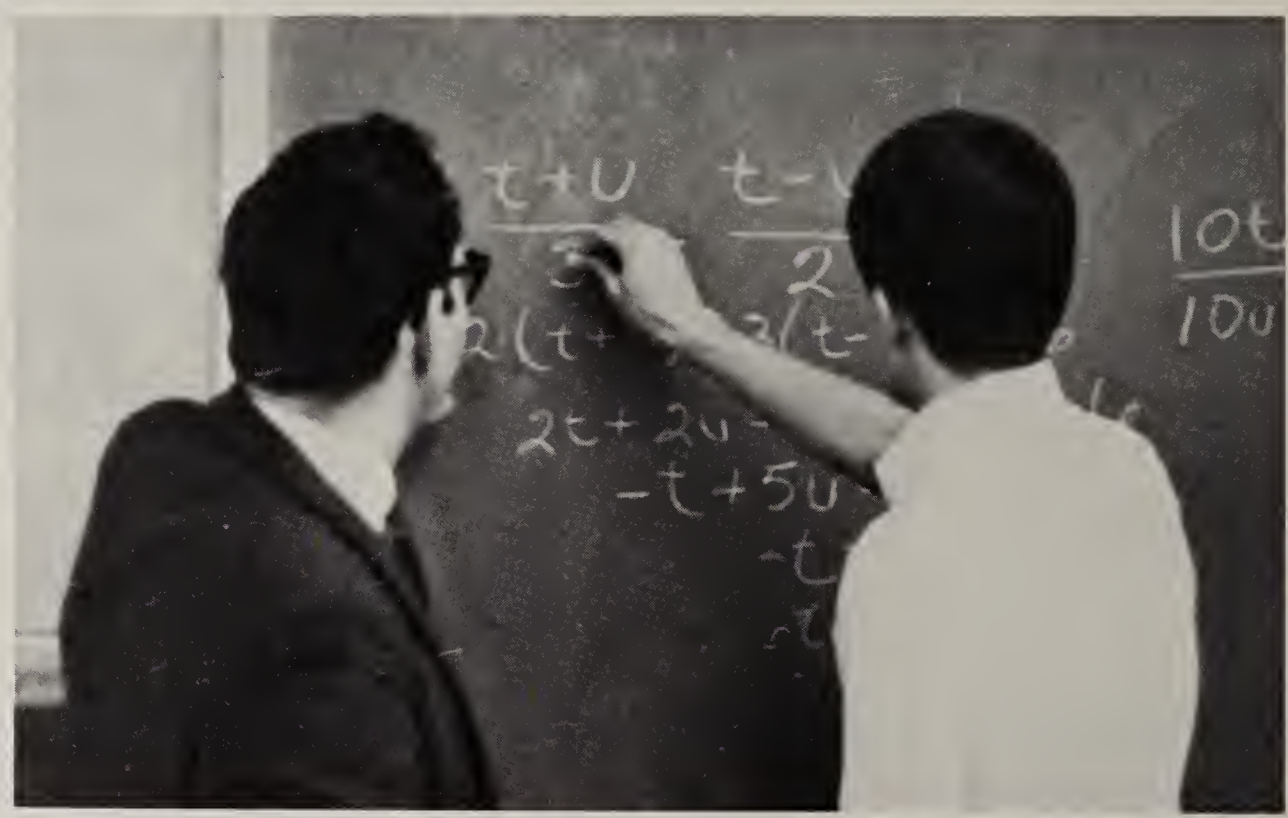
Math Courses Probe Minds, Spur Thoughts

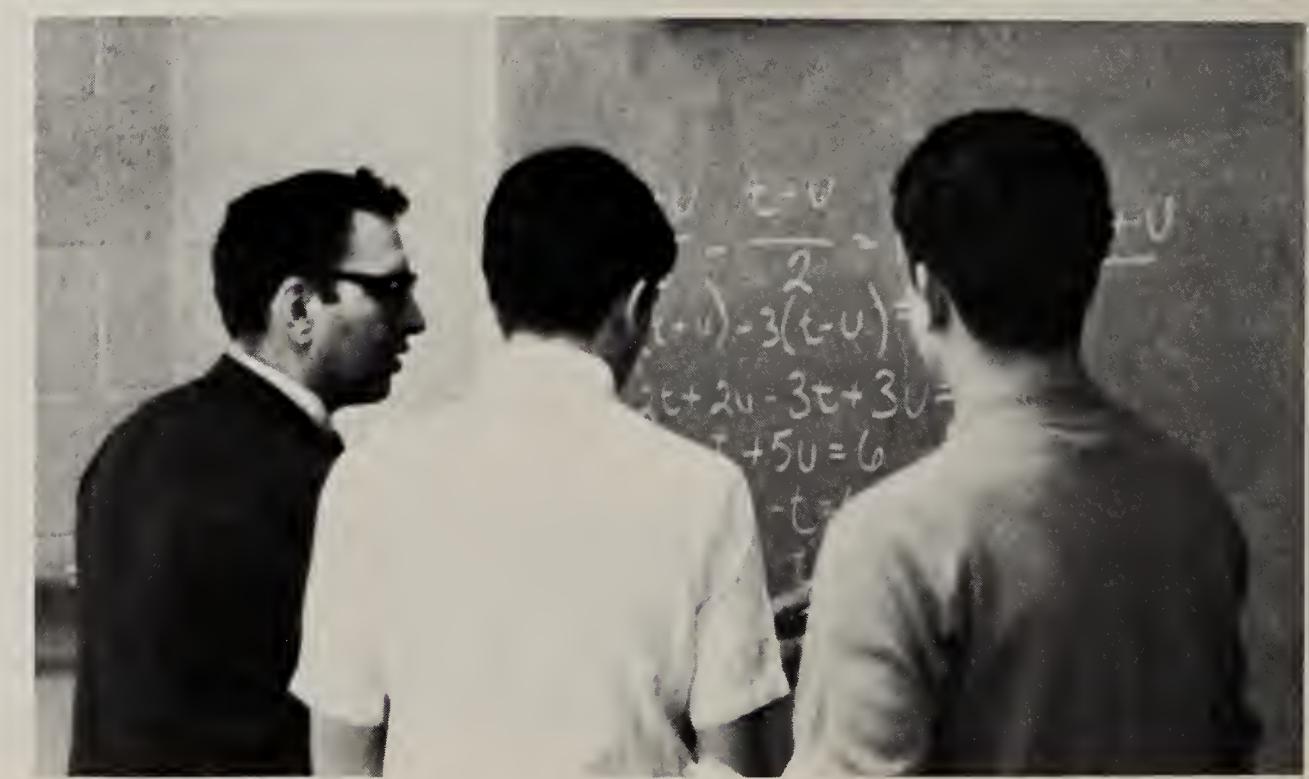
Mathematics helped students apply logical reasoning to problems. The MH math curriculum included seven subjects ranging from General Math to Trigonometry and Calculus.

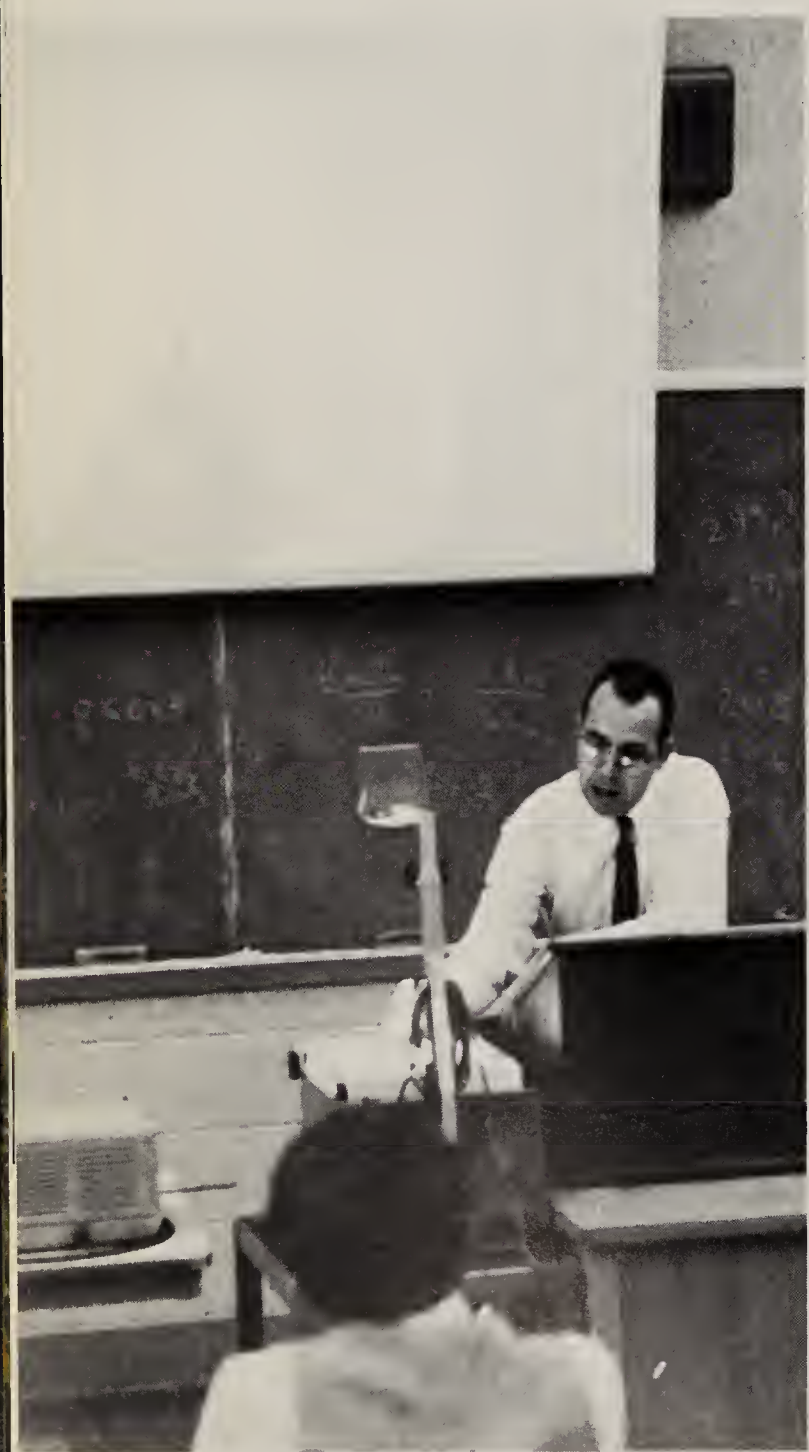
Among the seven subjects offered, Plane Geometry was the most popular as approximately 175 of the 606 students enrolled in math courses took Geometry.

A change occurred in the department when the Advanced Algebra classes switched to a new book at the beginning of the second semester. This change was made in order to better prepare the persons taking this course for Calculus.







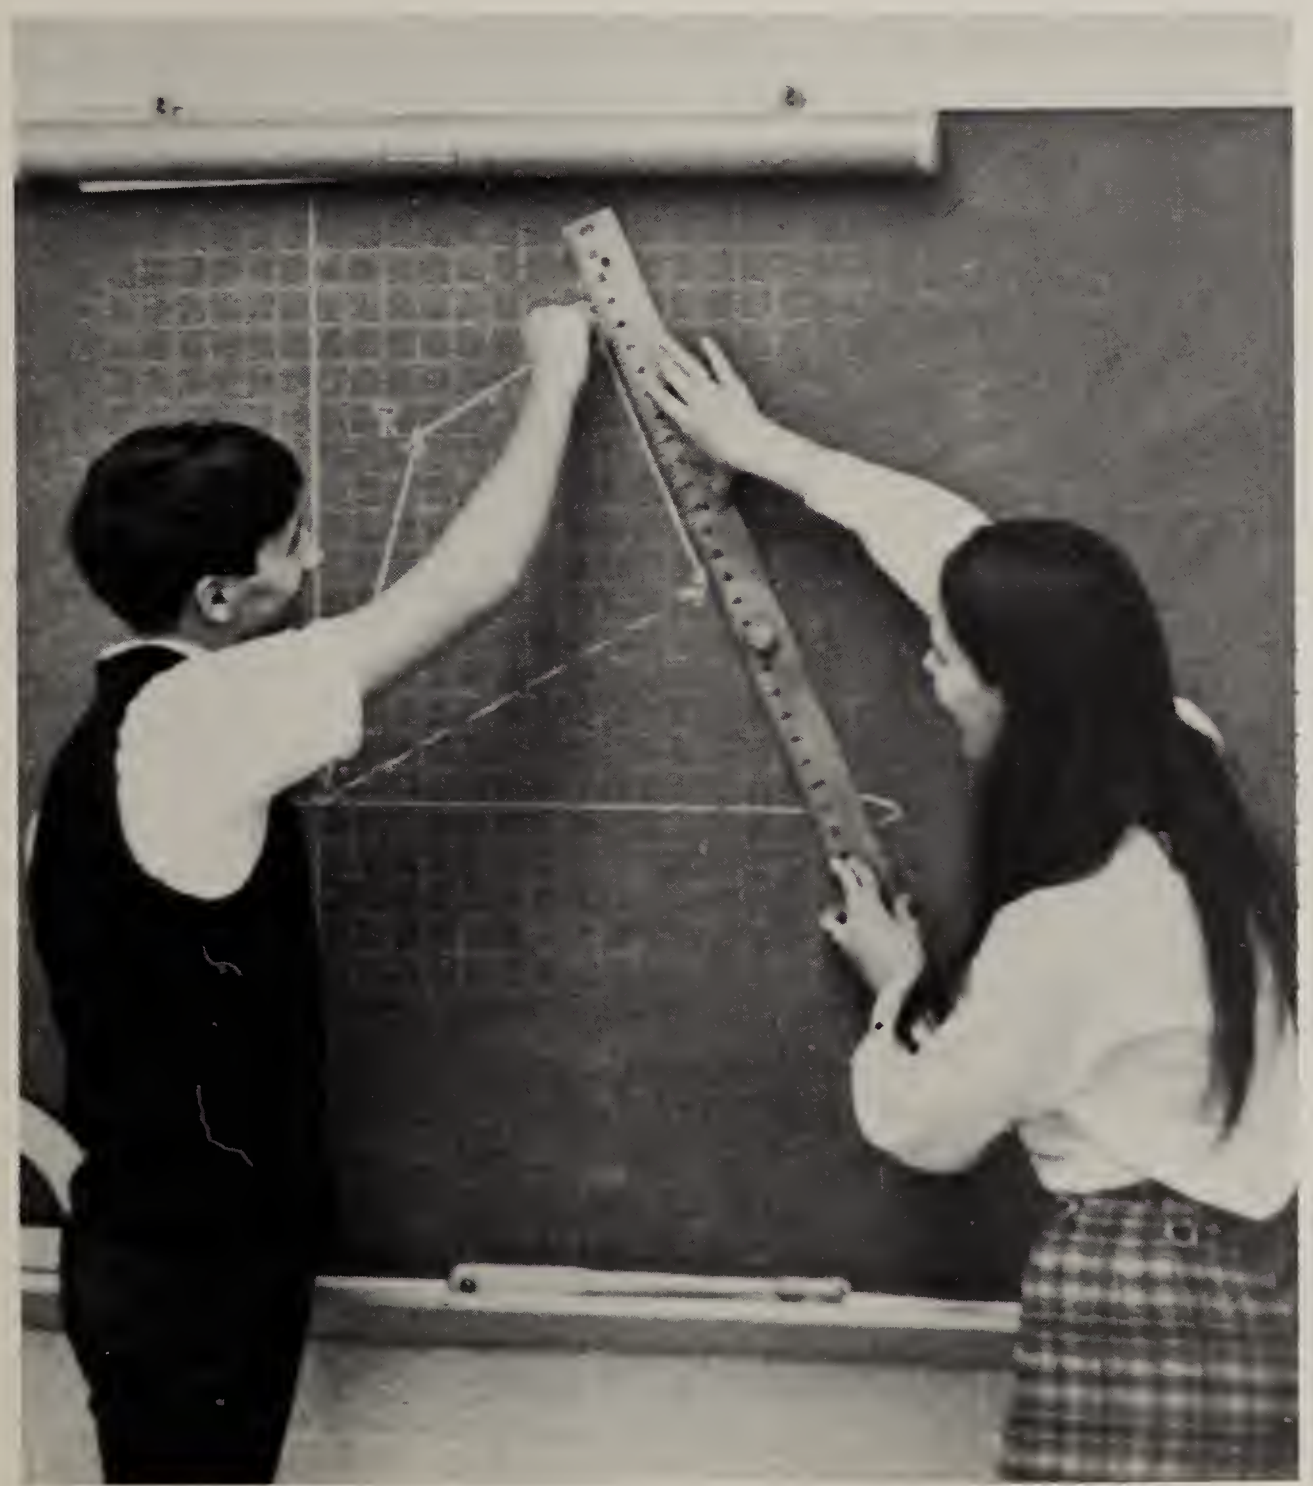


Mr. Wann explains complicated algebra problems in depth by using the overhead projector.

Math students benefit from work with problems, teacher's assistance, and other student's mistakes.

New Algebra Texts Better Department

Senior calculus students will soon seek a place in the ever-growing world of technical careers.



After five semesters of mathematics, Bob Henderson and Lyn Wiseman find graphing an easy task.

Holly Walker and Tom Donaldson consult a logarithms chart in order to complete an assignment.

Junior Earlie Dixon uses his persuasive talents to sell a magazine subscription to Doug Waltz.

275 Students

Future businessmen and women at MH gained experience and knowledge through diversified business classes. The business majors gave their services to the MH office staff, employing their acquired skills in practical situations.

Business law students practiced drawing up contracts in order to learn the legal aspects of business. Sales and retailing classes presented sales talks which perfected their selling abilities.

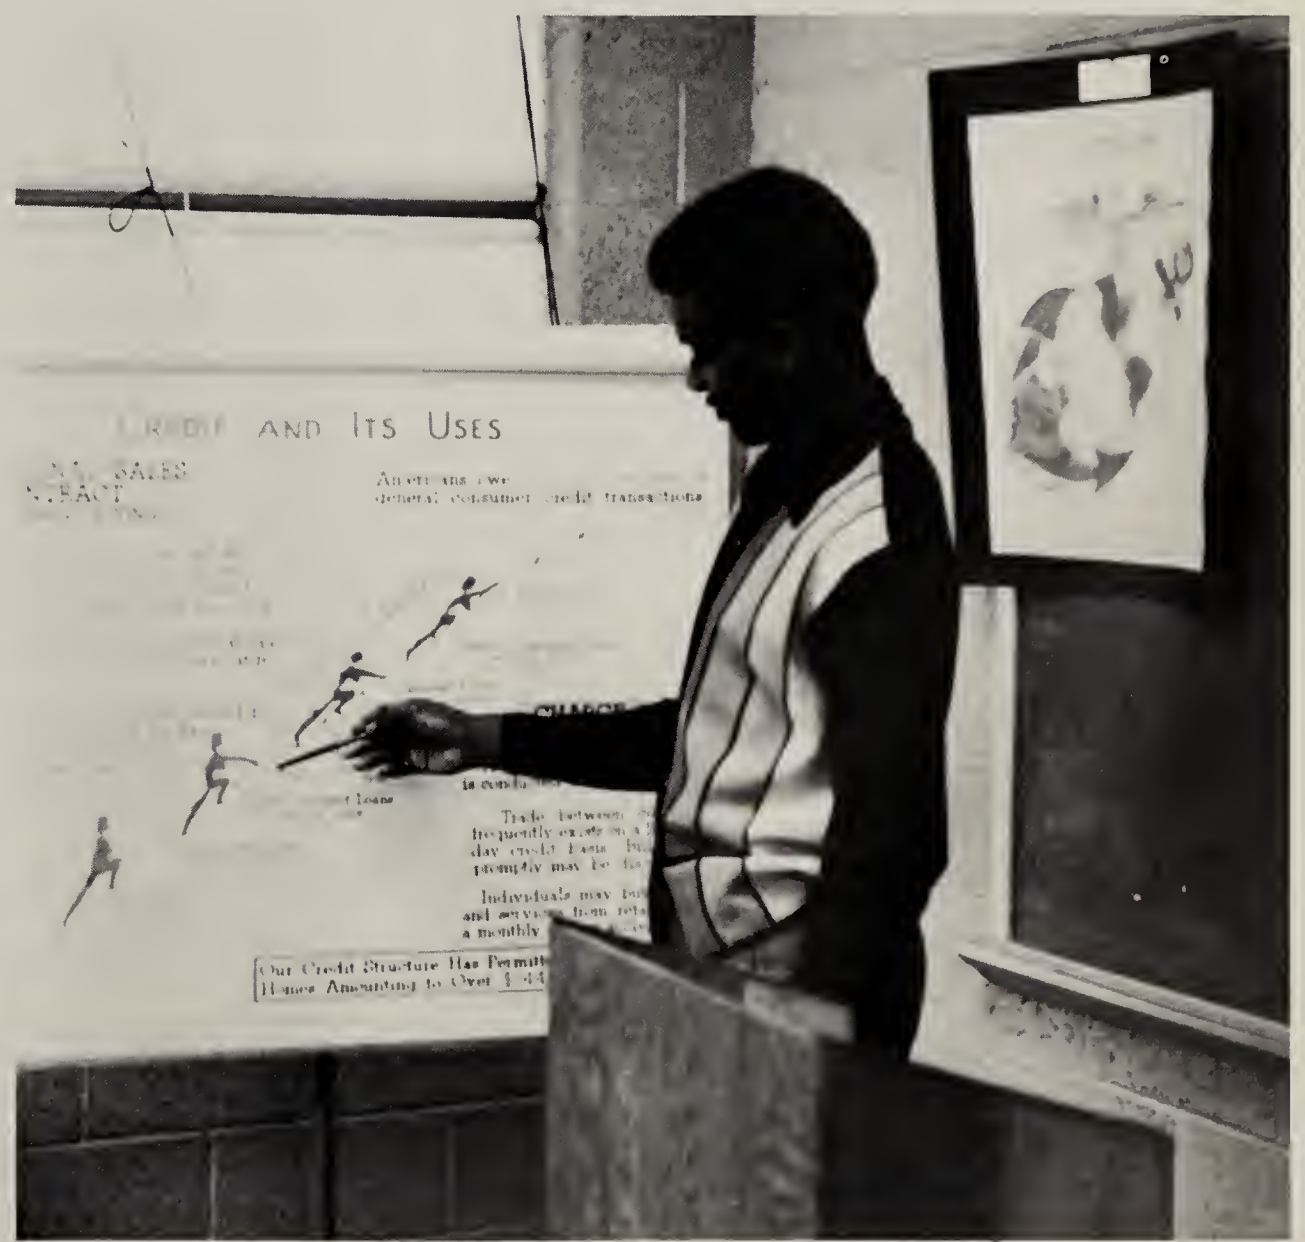
In Typing I and II students learned the basic skills of typing and prepared themselves for advanced classes. Bookkeeping I and II and Shorthand I and II provided an opportunity for pupils to gain experience for future secretarial work.

Mr. Thomas Pierce instructs his General Business class while classmates keep mental notes.

Acquire Background in Business Field

Student absence sheets for the use of the faculty are mimeographed daily by Miss Esther Raines.

Typing II student Peggy Robinson concentrates while finishing a timed writing.



Retailing class is enlivened by senior Mike Clark's informative talk on "Credit and Its Uses."

Thinking over a student comment, Mr. Joe Mitchell consults his book for an appropriate answer.

Talented Students Exhibit at Art Center

The Madison Heights Art Department offered three different courses of varying difficulty in the '68-69 school year. The first was designed to develop special interests in the use of pastels, pen and ink, water colors, and sculpturing. The second and third were designed to encourage individualism. The Art Department purchased a potter's wheel during the year to aid ceramic students.

In December, art students displayed their works at a Fine Arts exhibit sponsored by the Container Corporation of Anderson.

With the help of a fellow art student, Mike Chambers captures the vivacity of movement on canvas.

Mr. Riley advises senior Nancy Schuster on color combinations as she begins a picture.

Brad Childes and Larry Shepherd draw house designs for one of their projects in Art I class.

An engrossed art student carefully labors to complete one of his required projects for the six weeks.

Mark Yanik displays his talents while completing an action-packed painting of a basketball tip-off.

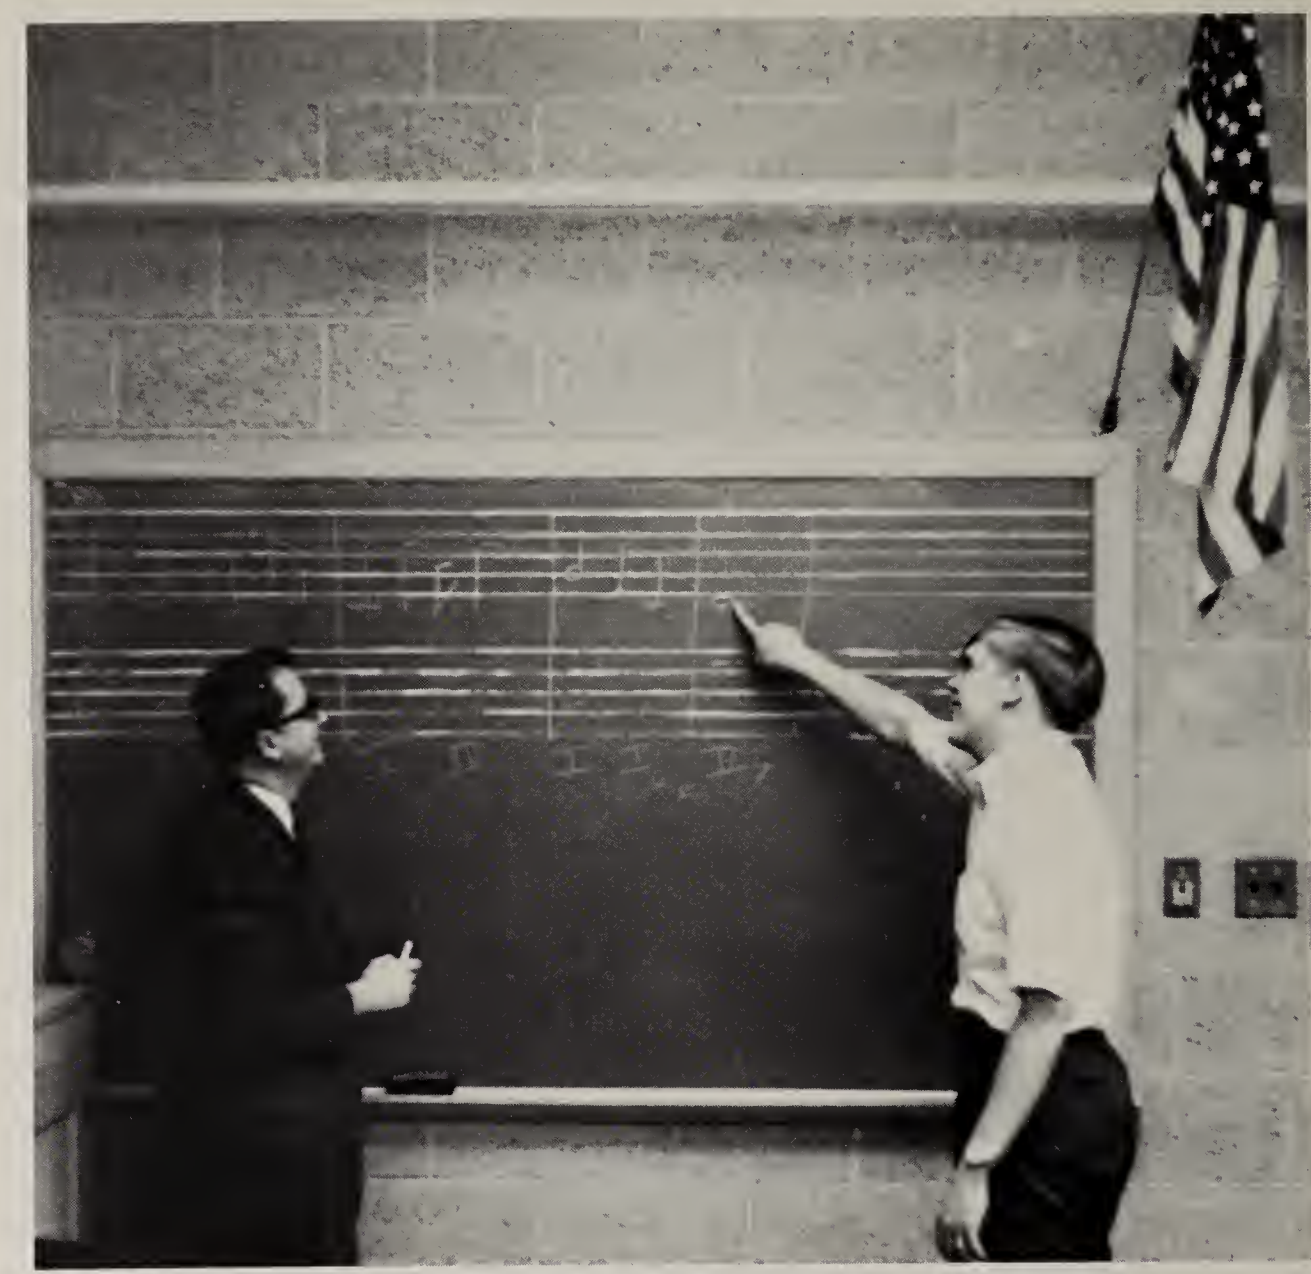
Soloists, Ensembles Compete for Firsts

Mr. Frame returns to his music stand after explaining the tempo to pianist Lynda Sears.



M Mr. Patton's Music Theory class provides Keith Hoffman a chance to express his creative talent.

During noon, the clarinet ensemble section of the MH band practices for a halftime performance.

Madison Heights Highliters prepare for district contest during one of their noon practices.

Music students learned the correct way to project sounds, both through the voice and through instruments. Music Theory classes taught musicians how compositions are formed and how they are best performed.

Mr. William Frame instructed four choirs—Concert, Mixed, Novelettes, and Highlighters. The choirs presented a holiday program complete with painted flats and a "Singing Tree".

Band members learned techniques for specific instruments from Mr. James Patton and Mr. Rex Konz. After-school sessions were spent practicing.

Musicians Spark Sports Events, Convos

Keeping the instruments in proper condition, Rex Konz tightens a key of a bass clarinet.

Senior trombonist Dale Coverdale puts in a practice session before the Spring Festival.

Home Economics Prepares Homemakers

Sophomore home economics students operate over a hot stove while stirring their favorite sauce.

Kathy Taylor moves the needle up and slips her material under the machine's presser foot.

Pam McAllister presses the seams open on the dress she is making in home economics class.

Home Economics major Rhonda Dale carefully positions her material under the presser foot.

Creating blouses and examining the sewing machine were the objectives of Clothing I. Clothing II and III designed more complicated articles of attire. The Foods I, II, and III classes catered for faculty teas, the M-Club dance, and the Honor Society induction.

The courses in Home Planning and Family Living enabled future homemakers to prepare for practical situations. Child Development classes learned techniques in the care of children.

Traveling to Thompson and McKinnon's and listening to various speakers from local clothing stores, students in Consumer's Education learned thrifty financing methods.

Coordinating their responsibilities, Foods II students prepare deserts during the Valentine season.

Safety classes were offered at MH to promote interest among the students in personal, school, and community safety and health. This class also better acquainted the students with the anatomy and physiology of their own bodies.

The students acquired practical information in administering first aid, making splints, performing artifical respiration, and dealing with emergencies.

Class discussions, explanatory movies, anatomy charts, and student demonstrations contributed to the knowledge pupils gained in safety class.

Mr. Howell personifies a skilled instructor aware of his responsibility to deliver an enjoyable lecture.

Safety Classes Prepare for Emergencies

Setting aside his safety classwork for a second, Mr. Dick Howell scans the hallways.

Safety student Phil Stone points out different bones as Shirley Burgess locates them on the chart.

Sophs Flood Drivers' Training Classes

Sophomores flooded the driver's education classes in an effort to master correct driving skills.

Each student fulfilled the state requirement of six hours of actual driving time before the finish of the one-semester course. These students practiced their driving proficiency on local streets and highways. The license-bound students acquired further knowledge, in the car and classroom, through the use of film strips, a magnetic traffic board, speakers from the police force, and three new cars with the latest accessories.

Driver's education equipped the future drivers with information on state traffic laws, skill practices, and habits needed for safe, defensive driving.

Under Mr. Otto's instruction, sophomores prepare to gain driving experience in the car.

A sophomore driving novice waits in the parking lot for his drivers' training instructor.

Brenda Ripburger and Janet Renfro simulate driving conditions in Driver's Education class.

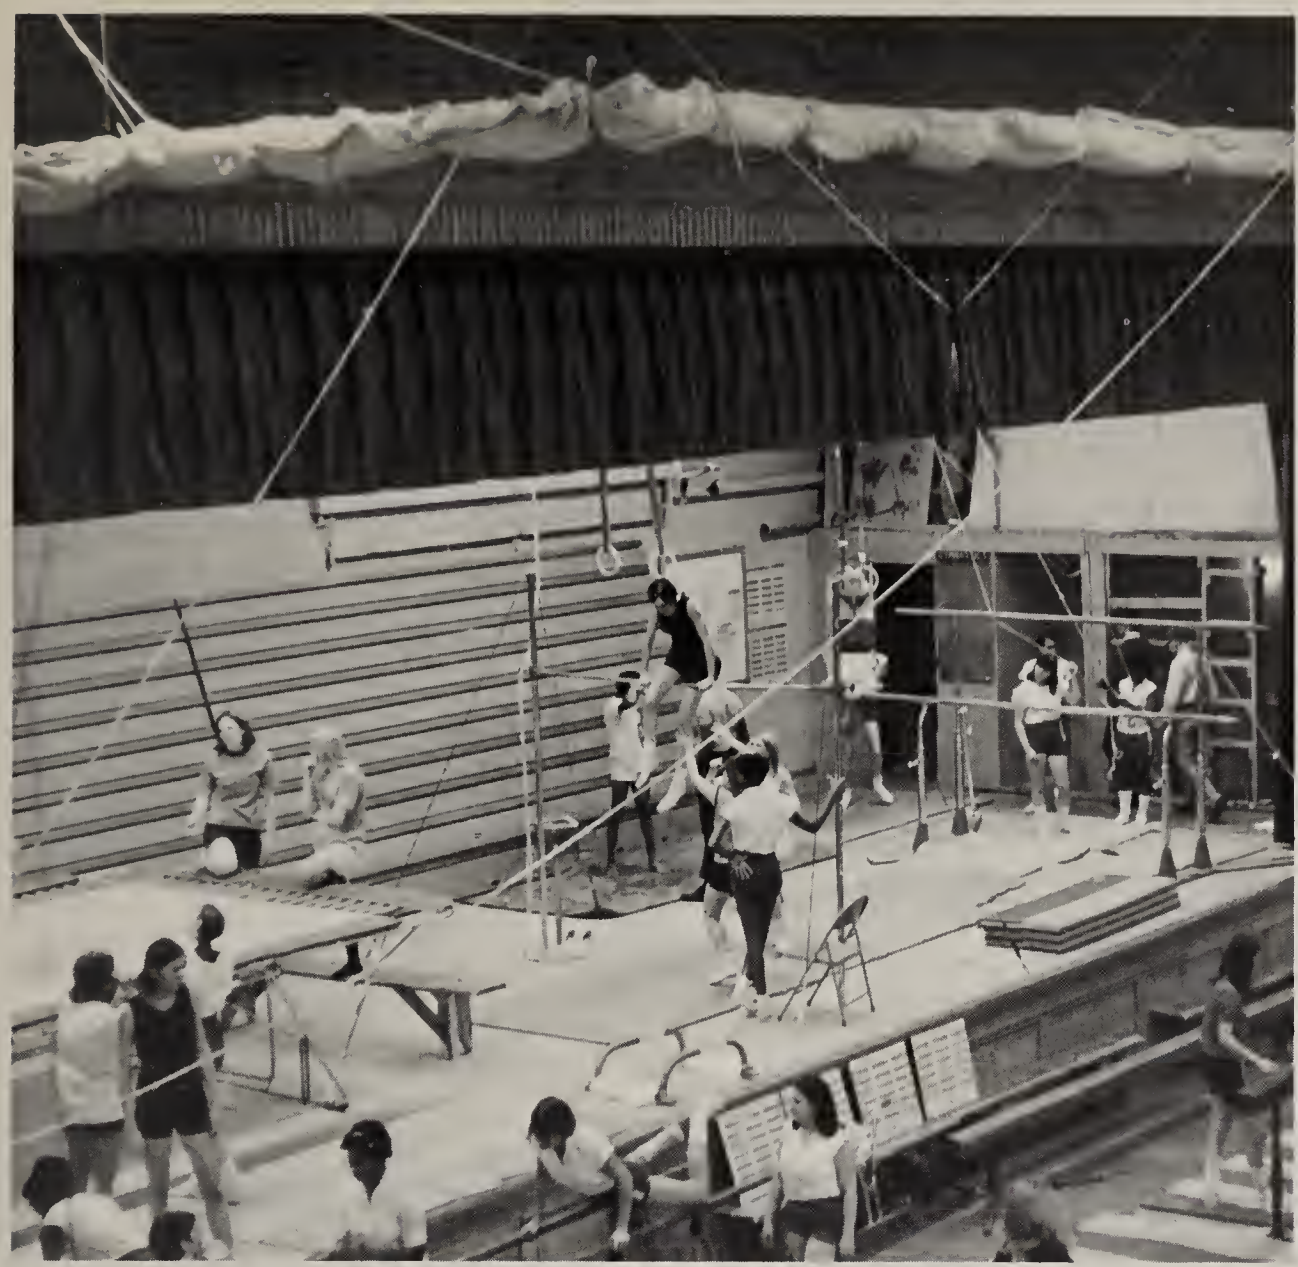
Recreational Sports Shape Trial Year

While the mild fall days last, PE classes abandon the gym for practice football sessions outside.

In boys' and girls' PE classes, sophomore students acquired new skills in recreational sports. The pupils traveled from school to go swimming, bowling, and tennis-playing. Mrs. Maxine Barcus' classes traveled on weekends to various destinations to see sports in action.

Boys' classes included touch football, soccer, wrestling, and golf. Boys and girls both learned skills in gymnastics and tumbling. Older, experienced PE leaders assisted all classes.

Mr. Horevay assists two of his sophomore PE students in demonstrating proper wrestling skills.



A PE class under Mrs. Barcus' direction practices simple stunts on the gymnastic apparatus.

Sophomore Joni Huffer executes a back flip on the trampoline with the aid of a safety belt.

Physical Education class displays uniformity and attentiveness during warm-up exercises.

MH Coaches' Storage Unit Constructed

The Vocational Department changed its program to include two halfday classes of 10 to 15 students. Boys were divided into classes of Auto Mechanics, Building Trades, and Metallography, directed by Kenneth Hodson, Harold Thompson, and Morris Smith.

Auto Mechanics classes gained the favor of teachers in return for maintenance jobs in the teacher parking lot. Building Trades students built a storage barn for MH coaches' use. The Metallography classes explored units in shell-molding foundry work for the first time in '69. All classes visited industries outside the school.

Vocational students gain experience while aiding in construction on the coaches' storage building.

Checking the spark plugs and points, junior Ralph Pittsford tunes up the engine of a '58 T-Bird.

Vocational major Danny Cram carefully adjusts the setting of a lathe during metal shop.

A metallurgical shop student protects himself against a 3,200 degree arc with a welder's mask.

'68 Prom Honors Seniors

Prom Committee member Sharon Phillips positions a column beneath the sea.

Seated in a sea shell shaped throne, beaming Queen Sharon Phillips and attendants Gloria Hunnel and Cynda Tatum pose for court pictures during ceremonies at the annual Junior-Senior Prom.

Transformed into an underwater paradise, the Madison Heights gym awaits anxious prom-goers.

with Undersea Motif and Surroundings

The underwater world was the motif of the 1968 Junior-Senior Prom. Fishnet roofing, colorful coral, floating fish, and sand enhanced mystic sea scenes. Three columned centerpieces adorned each table. Jacque Jaquess and Bob Dishmond instructed twenty-six juniors on the construction of the "City Under The Sea."

Greeted by sea nymphs, 250 couples entered the fascinating city through an ice blue cave. The couples danced to the music of The Other Five.

The Queen, Sharon Phillips, and her court, Cynda Tatum and Gloria Hunnell, reigned over the undersea city from their sea shell thrones.

Moving to the rhythm of The Other Five, Mike Riggs and Debbie Farran dance the boogaloo.

For the hard work of planning and producing a city under the sea, Prom Co-chairmen Jacque Jaquess and Bob Dishmond proudly receive gifts of appreciation from the junior executive council.

Rex Brown and Brenda Morris leave the Prom with an undersea treasure as a momento.

Hungarian Play Closes '68 Theatricals

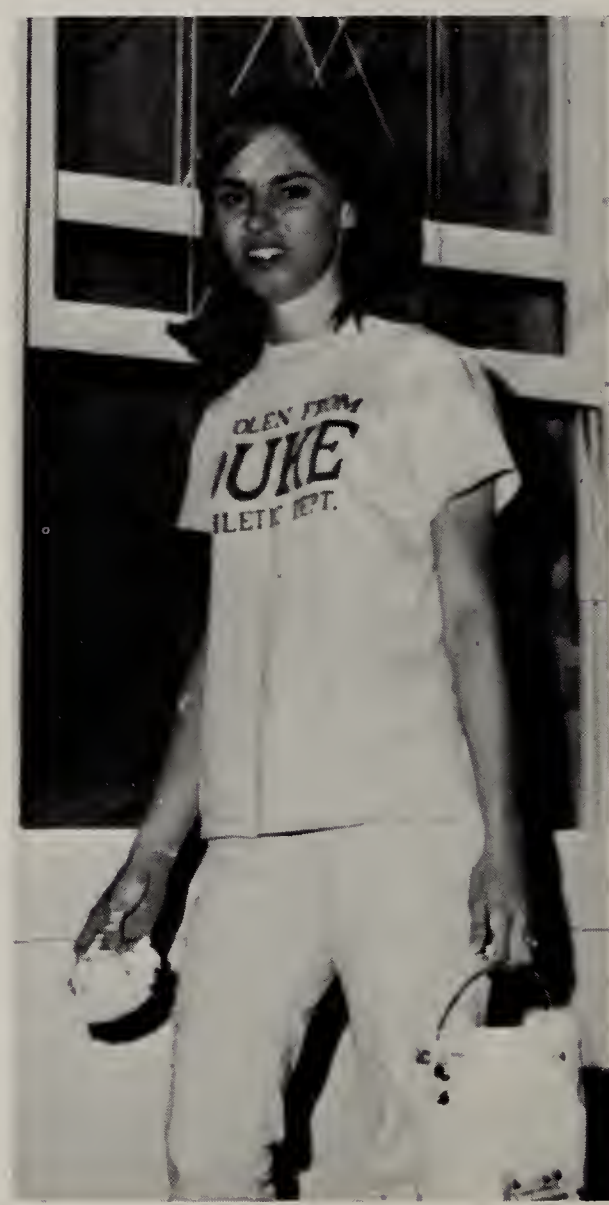
Explaining his unexpected visit, Ferenz Horkoy, Eddie Riddle, is watched admiringly by Mrs. Gyurkovics, played by Chris Huffer, and four of her daughters, Klara, Katinka, Sari, and Ella.

The class of 1969 presented "Seven Sisters" by Edith Ellis, the last class play to be given at Madison Heights.

The play was set in a middle class home in 17th century Hungary. Mitzi, Lynda Sears, was the fourth daughter who suffered under her mother's strict adherence to the custom that the eldest daughter marry first. She ingeniously allied Ed Riddle, portraying Ferenz Horkoy, who promised to help marry off her three older sisters by hook or by crook.

They easily managed to get Katinka, Brenda Morris, married to Phil Hines, who played Radvianny, and the second sister, Susie Yates, married to Sandorffy, Dave Gephardt. In the midst of pairing Ella, Candy Dunkin, and Gida, played by Roger Shoot, Mitzi and Horkoy's scheme was discovered by Mrs. Gyurkovics, Chris Huffer.

Dennis Barnes, Phil Hines, and Jennie McKinney review the evening's performance of "Seven Sisters" with leading lady Lynda Sears during a party for cast members at the Sears' residence.



Working on the play set, Suzahn Huffman crosses the stage with paint and brush in hand.

Commencement Concludes Senior Week

Annual mud tug finds juniors Dennis Alexander and Skip Roach in the pit prepared by the seniors.

Beginning with baccalaureate ceremonies, the class of 1968 enjoyed a four-day Senior Week. After venturing to Noblesville's Hillside Park for a picnic, the seniors received 1968 TREASURE CHESTS at the annual pizza party. The King's Inn provided the setting for the traditional class breakfast. The night before commencement, the class dined and danced at the Elks Club.

Boys of the junior class tasted defeat as the senior boys triumphed in the annual rope-pulling contest. Senior co-eds also proved their strength as they defeated the junior girls in the mud tug.

With commencement came the announcement that Anne Brewster and Fred Donaldson had been selected by their class to receive the outstanding citizenship awards. Dr. Charles W. Caress addressed the class on "Democracy's Greatest Gift"

Graduate Steve Short and junior Candy Dunkin model the '68 cap and gown.

Looking toward the future but remembering the past, 1968 seniors formally end high school career.

Lively Marilyn VanDerbur

Guest Marilyn VanDerbur expresses her belief that success thrives on hard work and not on talent.

Motivates State Council Representatives

Hosting the largest student convention in the world, Madison Heights opened its doors on October 5 to welcome delegates from high schools around the state for the 1968 State Convention of the Indiana Association of Student Councils.

Former Miss America, Marilyn VanDerbur, highlighted the Hoosier state event as guest speaker. At the opening session Miss VanDerbur spoke on "Dreams and Goals."

After the general session, delegates were free to attend any of 41 discussion groups. Ideas and beliefs were exchanged and disagreements voiced. "Awareness of Youth," the convention theme, was ever-present.

Dance music and entertainment were provided in the gym by the Clay Tablet as lunch groups were alternated in the cafeteria.

Following a second round of discussion groups and a business meeting for advisors, Ed Riddle presided over the closing session.

Bob Bender, Dana Austin, and Cindy Stidham register delegates and issue convention packets.

Led by Beth Harmsen and Vici Walsh, state SC leaders swap ideas at the '68 convention.

Keller Family Headlines Presentation

Madison Heights Thespians presented "The Miracle Worker" as the first all school production. Directed by William Jennings, the three act play portrayed the difficult childhood of Helen Keller.

Helen's parents, portrayed by Brenda Morris and Mr. William A. Jennings, sheltered the handicapped child during her infant years. The Kellers hired Annie Sullivan, played by Nancy Herridge, to help Helen, June Bennett, face reality. James Keller, Tim Emswiller, insisted on complicating Annie's work with Helen by his pessimistic attitude.

Annie reached her ultimate goal in the final scene when Helen discovered the world of communications and began to understand the meaning of a word.

Helen, battling the unknown, sits removed as a weary Annie Sullivan forces herself to continue.

Trying to make contact with Helen, Annie prevents Mrs. Keller from answering Helen's sign.

Homecoming Festivity Sparks Excitement

"Homecoming Spectacular 1968" was a triumph for Madison Heights as they scourged foe Alexandria 25—0. Touchdowns were scored against the Tiger team at will as the Pirates rolled on.

In float competition, the Senior Class won first, Pep Club, second, and the juniors, third among the organizations. In homerooms, 228 was first, 222 and 226 tied for second, and 37 was third.

Hushed excitement erupted into applause as Ed Riddle announced junior Sally McMahan as Homecoming Queen. Her court included sophomore Kathy Paulus and senior Cindy Stidham.

A Student Council-sponsored soc hop, honoring the queen, her court, and the victorious gridders, and featuring the sounds of the Clay Tablet, ended the '68 Homecoming festivities.

Senior float, "Cream those Smart Alex" wins Organization and Principal's Originality awards.

"Strip 'Em of their Rank; Make 'Em Walk the Plank" challenges winning Homeroom 228.

Junior Sally McMahan and escort Gary Gates are overcome by surprise as they and the other candidates, Cindy Stidham and Kathy Paulus, and escorts hear the announcement of the 1968 Queen.

Queen Sally is crowned by co-captain Neal Rector as Frank Donaldson and Dick Caplinger assist.

Backfield ace Glenn Ellis fights for valuable yardage in the Homecoming victory.

For the second year, Madison Heights conducted a mock political program, organized by Student Council vice-president Gary Hoover. Its basic purposes were to familiarize students with election procedures and encourage an interest and involvement in the American political system.

The program itself was changed from the state to the national level. A week of registration, to either the Loyalist or American Freedom parties, kicked off the month-long program. Discontented students organized a minority party that finally registered twice as many voters as either of the major parties.

The convention scenes were loud and confused, but tame in comparison to the national party conventions of the summer. The election result was a not-too-surprising third party sweep, spearheaded by Progressive victors Greg Graham and Tom Donaldson.

Enthusiastic state representatives join the rousing demonstrations supporting their candidate.

Winter Scenes Enhance Senior Dance

Wintery country scenes, garlands of greenery, and Christmas trees transformed the MH cafeteria into a romantic setting for the 1968 Senior Christmas Dance. A huge statue of St. Nick greeted the 100 couples as they entered the winter wonderland.

Greenery and red bows were placed in the middle of white-clothed tables. Behind the band, snowflakes floated in front of an ice blue backing. Strips of blue crepe paper swayed in the windows. Refreshments were served by members of the Junior Class.

The Epirons provided the music for the couples. Co-chairmen Jacque Jaquess and Bob Dishmond created the theme and designed the snow scenes.

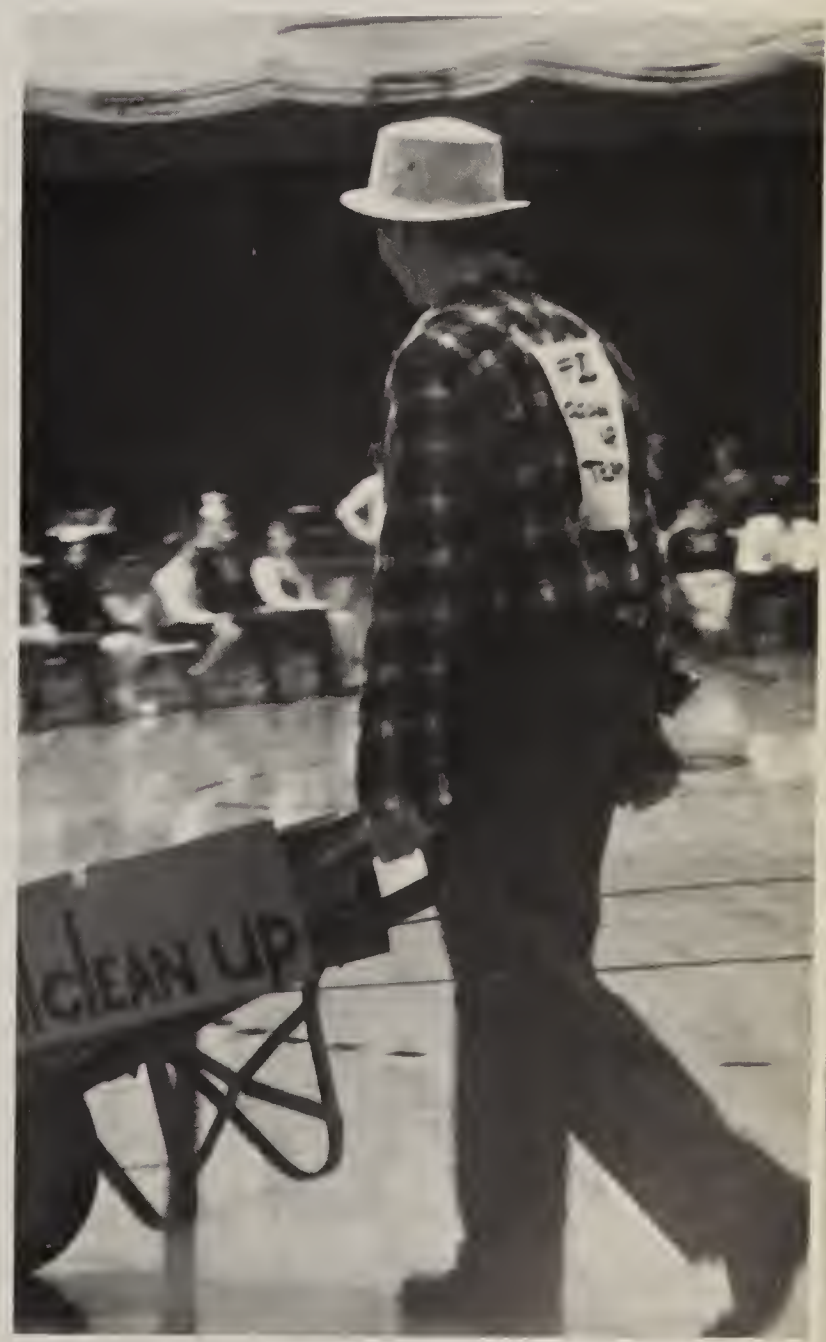
Contribute to Tourney Spirit

Mrs. Scarlet and Mr. Black take the place of honor at the head of the Sectional parade.

Scarlet and Black Week was ushered in by the appearance of ingenious hall displays set up by many Pirate organizations. Posters and signs decked bulletin boards, urging the Bucs on to a third tourney victory.

The awards of Miss Scarlet and Mr. Black were received by sophomore Gayle Hite and senior Dick Caplinger. For the second year, the cheerleaders chose a Mrs. Scarlet and Mr. Black. Dean Louise Grantham and instructor Mr. Frank Robertson received the titles. The traditional walking floats formed a procession in the hour-long pregame pep convo. Senior homeroom 224 garnered first place for originality and senior homeroom 34 was awarded first for general competition. Class of '69 gained the Jolly Roger spirit award and the hall display award for their third consecutive year.



"Pirates will clean up" boasts a homeroom Buc booster as he wheels around the gym.

ORGANIZATIONS

Riddle Steers 1968-1969 Pirate Council

President Ed Riddle, Vice-president Gary Hoover, Secretary Cindy Stidham, and Treasurer Becky Stuart command the Madison Heights High School Student Council for the 1968-1969 year.

The twenty-two elected and ten ex-officio members of the MH Student Council launched the school year by hosting the 1968-1969 Indiana State Student Council Association's annual convention in October. Madison Height's SC officers presided over the meeting.

Conducting Homecoming festivities, directing the Mock Political Convention, welcoming guests for the Second Annual Student Leadership Clinic, and sponsoring the Has Been-Will Be and Faculty-Senior games busied SC members for the rest of the year.

The MH Student Council, sponsored by Mr. B. C. Smith, joined with AHS' and HHS' councils in instituting the new Coffee House, located at the YMCA. Council members designed and decorated the local club.

High-Ranking

Honor Society upholds the principles of leadership, scholarship, character, and service. Eligibility for the honor organization requires a 3.5 grade average out of a possible 4. points.

Pledging to serve the country, God, and fellow man, eligible upperclassmen were inducted at the traditional candle light ceremonies on November 21. Reverend Snowden spoke to the new members and their families at the installation.

Leading fellow classmates in scholastic endeavors, the members ranked in the upper per cent of their classes. Approval from the Madison Heights' faculty was an eligibility requirement.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Louise Grantham, Honor Society utilized its funds to donate to an interclub scholarship and by providing gold tassels for graduating members.

For members of Honor Society, the lighted candle glows with a light of purpose and direction.

SEC Promotes Foreign Understanding

Working for international understanding, the Student Exchange Club of Madison Heights reached its 1968-1969 goal, which was to bring a foreign student here and to send MH students abroad.

Representing Afghanistan, foreign exchange student Sakhi Sakhawerz resided at the home of junior Larry Moran. He participated in such activities as Homecoming and the Optimist Club Youth Appreciation Week Program.

SEC also sponsored three MH students visiting foreign countries during the summer of '68. Ireland was the destination of senior Candy Dunkin. Linda Graves spent her summer in Sweden, while Kyle Carner experienced life in the Orient by traveling to Japan.

Directed by SEC President Dave Gephardt and sponsor Mr. Paul Redding, the members raised money for activities through their Tuff and candle sales. SEC also used a contest between homerooms selling AFS Bonds to raise funds.

Highlighting MH's '68-69 theatrical season were productions of "Miracle Worker," "Pillow Talk," and a junior class play produced by Thespians. All-school plays were innovated, and sponsor Mr. Jennings auditioned students from every class who were interested in performing in the plays.

Make-up artists, public relations managers, and ticket vendors worked behind the scenes to help make the dramatic endeavors successful. Student producers, directors, and actors gained invaluable experience in the field of drama by participating in the Thespian productions.

Best Actor and Actress, Best Supporting Actor and Actress, Outstanding Underclassman and Thespian of the Year awards were presented.

Bob Shoemaker, president; Lynda Sears, historian; Tim Emswiller, vice-president; Candy Dunkin, secretary; and Susie Yates, treasurer act as Thespian officers.

Helping behind the scenes, aiding in all-school productions, and acting in MH plays were just a few of the duties of Footliters this year. The junior dramatics group worked under the direction of Mr. William Jennings.

The group was a separate organization, holding their own meetings as well as joint sessions with Thespians.

The Footliters were involved in every MH theatrical endeavor, hoping to gain enough points to become a member of the Thespians. Appearing in plays, working back stage, and prompting helped to pile up points.

Rehearsals for MH play casts are often interrupted by the playful antics of one of the performers.

Speakers Incite Interests

Furthering student interests in the field of medicine, the Caduceus Medical Association held bi-monthly meetings, presided over by President Don Gemberling and Sponsor Mr. Jim Jones.

Local doctors including Dr. Suel Sheldon, Dermatologist, who showed color slides of many unusual skin diseases, and Dr. Melvin Denny, Anesthesiologist, were guest speakers at two of the meetings.

Caduceus participated in school activities by entering a float in the MH Homecoming parade, using the theme "Shoot it to 'em Pirates."

Prospective members were required to attend a formal induction ceremony held in the fall. Students from all classes took that opportunity to join Caduceus.

Treasurer Sherry Dyson, President Don Gemberling, Secretary Kathi Peters, Chaplain Tom Lacey, Vice-President Jim Bigler, and Sergeant-at-Arms Frank Donaldson pose at a meeting.

Pirate Debaters Contemplate, Deliberate

The 1968-1969 Debate Club members participated in the Model U.N. and the Purdue Legislative Assembly. At the assembly at Purdue University in West Lafayette, senior Tom Johnson impressed the delegates with his speaking skill and gained honors as the first place speaker and the top ranking committeeman. Fellow debater, Chris Ainsworth, received honorable mention recognition. Also planned for the year's activities was an inter-club debate from which the top two MH debaters were chosen.

At the club's weekly meetings, active members practiced debating, giving impromptu speeches, having discussions, and extemporaneous speaking. All of the discussions were based on the main topic of selective service.

Debate officers, President Phil Hines, Sergeant-at-arms Ken Ritchhart, Vice-president Ellen Schlossberg, and Secretary Helen Bauer stop at the foot of the stairs on the way to class.

Under bright studio lights, the MH Bowl Team prepares to battle Bloomington's Brain Squad.

After much preparation, the 1968-69 Academic Bowl Team performed on WFBM's "High School Bowl" television program and retired undefeated. Madison Heights accumulated 645 points against 375 points gained by three opposing teams: Bloomington High School, Park School of Indianapolis, and Tudor Hall of Indianapolis. The team that appeared on the broadcast included captain Bob Dishmond, Helen Ann Bauer, Gary Hoover, and George Chamblin.

Madison Height's Bowl Team has only been defeated once, and has been county champion for the past 3 years. The group of seven scholars was supervised by Mr. B. C. Smith.

Supervising the production of the 1969 Treasure Chest, Sponsor Mrs. Ann Smith and Co-Editors-in-Chief Candy Dunkin and Suzahn Huffman head the 16-member yearbook crew.

Sketches and

Madison Height's 1969 Treasure Chest inspired students with the theme "Profiles in Awareness". The gold covered annual was produced by Co-editors Candy Dunkin and Suzahn Huffman, sponsor Mrs. Ann Smith, and their fourteen member staff. The yearbook crew worked throughout the year to develop a valuable Pirate log for MH classes.

Many harried work sessions preceeded the four major deadlines during the year. Writing captions, snapping last minute pictures, and redoing layout sheets occupied the whole staff as they endeavored to finish the required pages on time.

Innovations this year were art work by Jacque Jaquess on the cover and division pages and a switch from two column layout to three column layout.

Rejoicing at the thought of a finished deadline, staff members gleefully abandon TC responsibilities.

The Jolly Roger crew had the job of putting together a weekly newspaper this year. Editor Bob Dishmond and sponsor Mrs. Ruby Jones encouraged the twenty-two member work force to establish a first-rate journal. The MH publication entered its tenth year.

Returning from the Indiana High School Journalism Institute, Bob Dishmond and Stephanie Hofer instructed other staff members in the techniques learned at the training session at Indiana University last summer.

Reporters hurried to finish stories in time for shorter deadlines, photographers developed prints, and journalism students learned the proper procedures in newswriting.

The paper represented the student body with opinion polls, student editorials, and stories concerning MH.

Fourth and fifth periods find the Jolly Roger staff room alive with individual and group activities.

The Buccaneer staff was divided into the copyreading, typing, homeroom, finance, and publicity staffs. Senior Peggy Biddle edited the 1968-69 edition.

Replacing Mrs. Elva Mae Hamilton, Mrs. Carole McCafferty sponsored the literary work.

Senior Buccaneer editor Peggy Biddle and staff member Terry Downey proofread a submittal.

Quill and Scroll sponsors Mrs. Ruby Jones, advisor of the Jolly Roger, and Mrs. Ann Smith, Treasure Chest advisor, guided this year's honorary journalist's club. To obtain membership in the honorary, a student must have worked one year on one of the school publication staffs, attained a class rank in the upper one-third, and must have been recommended by one of the sponsors.

The new members received their pins and membership cards at a spring installment ceremony in the school front hall.

FTA Strengthens Interest in Education

MH students interested in teaching were given the opportunity to learn more about the many jobs available in education through the Future Teachers Association. At the bi-monthly meetings the students discussed with guest speakers or sponsor Mrs. Lee Johnson such topics as administration, counseling, and tutoring, as well as classroom teaching procedures.

The Future Teacher members were active in both local and regional meetings. A delegation was sent to Indianapolis to the regional conference in the spring of 1969.

Madison Heights and Anderson High School members of Future Teachers were given the opportunity to tutor students in grades one through nine. The principals of each school involved arranged the tutoring assignments.

The Future Secretaries Association is a joint club consisting of juniors and seniors from Anderson and Madison Heights High Schools. The monthly meetings were held at the YWCA and were presided over by four officers who were from both schools.

The National Secretaries Association, of which FSA is a part, helps give students interested in office work a look into the business world. Representatives of corporations and various business establishments spoke at several of the meetings. Also on the club's agenda this year were hair styling and cosmetic demonstrations and a fashion show.

The Service Club donated time and services to Madison Heights during the year of 1968-1969. The members aided in the school offices, benefiting both students and faculty.

Sponsored by Mrs. Louise Grantham and Mrs. Virginia Pryor, the Pirate volunteers assisted in the counseling department and health office. Answering telephones, taking messages, and running errands were some of the duties of the Service Club members.

As a community project, the Service Club raised money for Christmas presents to donate to the Mental Health Center. Serving at teas for the faculty was one of the club's other activities.

Aiding Mrs. Mildred Felmlee, the librarians performed multiple tasks. The student assistants checked out and reshelved the more than 10,000 books available to MH students and teachers. In addition to managing the checkout counter, the librarians catalogued and applied protective covering to new books. Mrs. Judi Jacobs supervised the library's audio-visual aids department.

The MH ushers volunteered numerous services to sports fans during the 1968-1969 school year. Sponsored by Mr. Paul Bradford, the ushers passed out programs at football games and swept the basketball floor during half-time. Salvaging lost articles from under the bleachers was also a prime concern to the men in the red and black uniforms.

Aiding the Madison Heights administration, the office assistants performed numerous duties. For one period a day, the students helped counselors and ran errands within the building for the administrative offices.

For the second year, world history classes were assisted by an upperclassman. Grading history papers and aiding the history teacher within the classroom were primarily this assistant's job.

Science assistants furthered their knowledge in the field of science by overseeing chemistry, physics, and other scientific classes. These students prepared needed materials for experiments and disections.

Science Assistants—Roy White, Charlie Baker, Kathy Gordon, Mike Morgan.

PE Leaders Exhibit Skills

Mrs. Maxine Barcus and Mr. John Horevay enlisted the help of 29 assistants for the 1968-69 school year. Principle duties included inspecting students' uniforms, leading exercises, and supervising classroom procedures. In addition to participating in the routine class activities, these upperclassmen demonstrated their accomplishments in the physical education area.

Since outside trips included gymnastics, bowling, and swimming, it was necessary for the assistants to have knowledge in many fields. As Mrs. Maxine Barcus stated, "PE assistants are the backbone of the physical education department."

Buckettes helped Coach Jones at swim meets by timing races, recording scores, and judging diving. The girls attended all home swim meets.

At gymnastic meets, Coach Lechlitner received the Gymnettes aid. The Gymnettes recorded the judge's scores and announced results.

Cinderellas announced events, kept the records, and handed out ribbons for the Madison Heights' track team. The Pirate co-eds donned MH track team jackets during the competitive meets.

MH drum majors and head majorette present eleventh place state fair trophy to Principal Collier.

Out-stepping 65 bands in a field of 76 in the Indiana State Fair Band competition, the Pirate band, under the direction of Mr. James C. Patton, came home to practice new routines and musical numbers in hopes of garnering higher ranking.

A brass choir entertained at the Christmas program. Featured at the Spring concert was a selection from the movie "The Happiest Millionaire" and a number entitled "Intermezzo"

The band performed during basketball games with the Heightsteppers, and during football games they performed original marching routines to the accompaniment of more popular music.

The Dance Band joined the Concert Band for many of its performances. The 17-member ensemble played at the March concert and the Spring Festival. The Dance Band also competed in the Ball State music contests.

22 Heightsteppers Entertain at Half-time

After hours of summer practice, the Madison Heights Heightsteppers opened the 1968-69 season with performances at the Indiana State Fair, Ball State Homecoming Parade, and MH football games.

The twenty-two Heightsteppers were under the direction of Head Majorette Kathy Lewis and sponsor Mrs. Judi Jacobs.

The Heightsteppers added color to the MH basketball games with a variety of half-time shows. Their polished routines were effectively set off by the many colorful and original uniforms.

The American flag, proudly displayed by the majorettes, brought sports fans to attention for the presentation of the "Star Spangled Banner" before every home football and basketball game.

Following tradition, Heightsteppers ushered the cheerleaders and football team onto the playing field.

Pirate Spirit Inspires Hardwood Crew

Boosting the Pirate basketball team, the Madison Heights' Pep Club numbered 240 girls. The members attended all home games and numerous meetings throughout the year.

The club utilized reversible red and black vests to form checkerboards, diagonal designs, and letters. For versatility, the spirited co-eds added black gloves to their outfits.

The spirit committee kept school halls decorated with signs backing all Madison Heights teams. The finance committee sold the traditional license plates and organized a bake sale.

Sponsored by Mrs. Judy Atherton, the Pep Club introduced new yells to the student body.

Mascot Adds Pep to Roundball Season

Boosting spirit for all MH sports this year were cheerleaders Carol Bollinger, Karen Humphrey, Marcia Carr, Sharon Phillips, Kris Givan, and captain Cynda Tatum. The squad, sponsored by Mrs. Judith Atherton, attended cheerleading camp at Indiana State University and brought home third-place honors from the five-state area camp. The girls placed second at the Tipton County Fair and won the competition at the Madison County Fair. One of the squad's projects was painting the outside restrooms, concession stand, and the press box a spirited red and black.

Reserve cheerleaders Kathy Rutter, Gayle Hite, Denise Morris, Leann Jones, and Dawn Nyboer boosted spirit for the junior varsity teams.

Boasting a new sword, Pirate mascot Steve Davis flipped through the tunnel of "M"-club'ers before each home basketball game.

Enthusiastic M-Club Strengthens Spirit

M-Club members occupy the choice seats of the gym for the Madison Heights' basketball season.

All MH varsity athletes are awarded membership into M-Club. The sportsminded boys backed the basketball team by sitting as a block at all home games. Boys winning varsity letters in three sports received an M-jacket, representing hard work and a sense of pride in MHHS.

Along with the cheerleaders, the members sponsored a November soc hop. The lettermen's club had its annual dance at which inductees took the club oath and received pins. Highlighting the year was an all sports banquet.

Explaining the club, sponsor Paul Bradford said its function is as an honorary organization to reward hard-working young men for achievement and success in sports.

Track Men Set Five School Records

Straining muscles propel junior Brad Childes into mid-air as his face reflects the anguish of a struggle for a new record in the long jump.

Five records gave way to the 1968 track team as the underclassmen gave the Cindermen the depth they needed. Junior Jeff Perry's high point total and records of 14.7 in the high hurdles and 22' 9.75" in the long jump led the way.

Senior Bob Orebaugh raised the pole vault record to 13'3". However, injuries kept him from defending his Sectional crown. Senior Scott Hiles became the fastest high school distance runner with a sizzling state record of 4:08.0 in the mile run. In the national meet in California he chalked up a victorious 8:56.4 in the two mile run.

The Pirates finished the season with seven wins and two losses. In big meet competition they ran away with the Noblesville Relays and the New Castle Invitational. They settled for fourth in both the Muncie and Marion Relays, but came back to take second in the Sectional and eighth in the Regional.

Twin-Bill Victory over #1 North Central

Led by Jim Regenold's .426 and Larry Douglas' .415 batting averages, the 1968 diamondmen composed a fourteen win-three loss record. As a whole, the team batted a respectable .300 and accumulated an impressive 96 run record while their opponents managed only 60.

With the superior pitching of Jack Rector and Larry Douglas, the Pirates held three-fourths of their opponents to less than three runs per game.

After losing their first game to state finalist Marion, the Corsairs came back and shut out Noblesville. Then the Bradfordmen lost to Shelbyville before starting a seven-game winning streak. The streak included a shut-out over North Central, the trouncing of Alexandria, and a one-run victory over Anderson. The Pirates lost their rematch with Anderson but finished with four overwhelming victories, including another shut-out over Richmond's Red Devils.

The 1968 Madison Heights Golf Team successfully defended its state crown again this year. All of the first five linksmen returned from last year and went on to a thirteen win and two loss record. The Pirates lost their only meet to Carmel by a two point margin.

In the Bloomington Invitational the golfers were first with 298 strokes. They were sixth in the Culver Tourney and were disqualified in the LaPorte Invitational after having finished first. The Linksmen went on to win the sectional, place second in the regional, and then win the state in a thrilling come-from-behind victory.

Bill Spannuth led the linksmen for the third consecutive year. Number two spot was always in contention between Mickey DeHority, Trent Stephenson, Bob Williams, and Mike Roberts. Bucs Battle to 14-9 Roundball Record

Led by Head Coach Phil Buck and Assistant Coach Dick Howell, the 1968-69 Pirate hardwood team capsized twelve foes and fell to eight. The Buc ball-hawkers captured the first two games of the Sectional, defeating Markleville and Daleville. A loss to the Indians in the final game ended the 1968-69 Pirate season.

On the individual scene, the fans saw new faces this year. Of these, Earlie Dixon took top honors. Dixon, who set a new single game scoring record of 43 points, was second in county scoring. Big Mike Clark and Neal Rector attended to the rebounding, and Coy Nunn, Greg Graham, and Greg Nyboer took care of getting the ball down the floor. Buck's bench had depth and strength, causing a variety of possible team combinations.

The reserves matched the varsity record of twelve wins and eight losses. Coach Jim Sutton's team nabbed the four-way Holiday Tourney. Sophomores Jeff Cox and John Youngblood formed the backbone of the 1968-69 reserve team.

School Board Shapes School Policies

Setting school policies, hiring teachers, and distributing funds were only a few of the jobs of the Anderson School Board. This board consisted of five members appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the City Council.

Before the school year began the board prepared a budget to submit to the City Council. The money that was allotted from taxes was used to pay teachers' salaries, improve existing school facilities, and help pay for the newest school in the city, North Side Junior High.

Consulting a school policy manual, Superintendent G. E. Ebbertt answers a telephone inquiry.

Public Relations head Jim Rady shows Mr. Ebbertt a National Education Week flyer.

Collier Serves as Pirate-in-Command

Principal Robert Collier explains teen guidance papers to Mrs. Herron, his personal secretary.

The responsibility for an effective school program fell to the MH administration. Principal Robert E. Collier served as Pirate-in-command to 1351 students and 72 teachers. Working along side Mr. Collier, Mr. Paul Redding, Vice-Principal, supervised student activities.

At the beginning of the year, Deans Louise Grantham and John Dull presented orientation convocations to students in all grades. The major role of the deans throughout the year centered on the development of positive attitudes in all students. The four administrators cooperated to effect a workable program for Madison Heights.

Deans John Dull and Louise Grantham go about their daily task of issuing absentee slips.

Mr. Paul Redding, assistant principal, explains school policy forms to Mrs. Morris, secretary.

Eleven-Department Faculty Is 72 Strong

During the 1968-69 school year, 72 teachers served the Madison Heights student body. Faculty members conducted group classes as well as giving individual attention. The average teacher conducted four classes daily with approximately 25 students in each class. Most teachers had either one homeroom or one activities period.

Each Madison Heights instructor possessed either a Bachelor of Science or a Bachelor of Art degree. Over half of the educators had acquired their Masters of Art or Masters of Science degrees.

Besides instructive positions, many faculty members sponsored numerous organizations and publications and coached athletic teams.

Coach Ron Beard critically analyzes messages from the tower which urge a change in the backfield.

Counselors Advise Pupils on Colleges

Counselor Forrest Schepper consults a college catalogue in an effort to advise senior Doug Waltz.

Advising confused MH'ers this year were guidance counselors Mrs. Judith Atherton, Mr. Ronald Beard, and Mr. Forrest Schepper.

Sophomore advisor Mr. Beard undertook the duty of setting students off to a good start on their high school career.

Mrs. Atherton aided in conducting ITED and PSAT tests for juniors, and worked toward expanding the curriculum at MH.

Advising college-bound students, directing Guidance Night, and placing MH grads occupied the head counselor, Mr. Schepper.

Sorting through the student card file, Mrs. Atherton completes a check on junior schedules.

Cooks, Janitors Cater to MH Needs

MH's 22 cooks fixed 800 plate lunches and 1400 sandwiches daily. The cafeteria offered the city's largest a la carte menu. National School Lunch Week, October 14-18, stressed the importance of the school lunch program.

Custodians were responsible for the upkeep of MHHS. The eight janitors cleaned the building, attended to yardwork, and maintained the heating and electrical systems.

Before the noon-hour onslaught, bustling MH cooks Mrs. Harmon, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Whitesel, and Mrs. McLaughlin quickly work to prepare plate lunches for the high school cafeteria line.

Familiar faces, MH custodians Dane Ousley and Floyd Myers pause before post-school rounds.

Cashiers Mrs. Price and Mrs. Colliver busily count the daily proceeds from the hundreds of MH students buying school plate lunches.

Seniors Face Final High School Year

Thoughts of past athletic events, building the Junior Prom, producing the last class play, and pursuing higher class rank brought laughter and tears to the Class of 1969.

Peddling popcorn, cokes, and hot dogs during gridiron season busied class members. The concession money boosted the senior gift fund.

Cindy Stidham represented the seniors in the homecoming queen's court. The upperclassmen created a soup can that read, "Cream of Tiger Soup!" The float won two firsts at the festivities.

The Christmas Dance had a winter wonderland setting. The music of the "Epirons" entertained seniors and their guests at the annual affair.

Senior beauties were selected to rule over two dances. Sharon Phillips reigned over the 1968 Prom, while Cynda Tatum was elected Treasure Chest Queen.

For Sectional Week, seniors nominated Cathy Grimes Miss Scarlet and Dick Caplinger Mr. Black. The class created a sectional display simulating a giant rocket in hopes of propelling the team to victory.

After being honored by the '69 Prom and participating in baccalaureate ceremonies, the class began the memorable Senior Week. Jenny McKinney earned her place as the 1969 Valedictorian. Seniors finished their high school career with a June 4th commencement.

Juniors Aim Toward Top Mast Status

Assuming customary class responsibilities, the juniors commanded the basketball concessions. Selling popcorn and cokes to hungry, thirsty Pirate fans helped finance the 1968-69 Prom and other junior projects.

Juniors appeared in the spotlight several times in the '68-'69 year. Sally McMahan was crowned Homecoming queen, and the class float earned honorable mention with the slogan "Catch a Tiger by the Tail". The "Mr. Gorgeous Gams" title was won by junior basketball player Earlie Dixon. The class also presented a Thespian-sponsored play.

Construction of the prom, "It Happens Every Spring," was handled by the juniors, who spent long hours laboring over the annual production.

The four officers and sponsor Mr. William Jennings guided the juniors through another year in their high school careers as the Class of 1970 prepared themselves for their reign as seniors.

Sophomores Form First Unified Council

Secretary Gayle Hite, Treasurer Bruce Pearson, President Brad Manifold, and Vice President Bob Sprague take a lunch break before a class executive council meeting.

Students from South Side and Madison Heights Jr. High Schools combined for the first time to form the MH Class of '71. These students began an active first year in high school by electing class officers and a fifteen-member executive council. The council was in charge of organizing the details for all sophomore activities. Presiding over the council meetings was Class President Brad Manifold, aided by Vice-President Bob Sprague, Secretary Gayle Hite, and Treasurer Bruce Pearson.

The executive council had the significant responsibility of selecting two class rings, between which the individual students could choose. They also picked the class colors and selected sweaters and jackets.

Heading a Christmas project was one of the activities of the council. The money appropriated through a bake sale and soph homeroom donations was used to purchase records and stationary for the teen-agers at the Madison County Children's Home.

The purpose of every annual is to record the highlights of a school year. With this in mind, the 1969 Treasure Chest staff tried to organize the school year from March, 1968, to March, 1969. Every yearbook staff necessarily has editors, but the work load falls on the individual members. Our staff deserves recognition for their work on the 1969 Treasure Chest.

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to the administration, athletic department, faculty, and Jolly Roger staff for their cooperation in the production of the 1969 Treasure Chest.

For special services to the staff, we wish to thank Mrs. Ann Smith, in her sixth year as yearbook advisor, Mrs. Coramae Simmons, Jeff Atteberry, Mike Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunkin, Mr. and Mrs. William Huffman, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dyson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Faris.

Acknowledgements

We would also like to express our appreciation to these individuals and firms for their cooperation in publishing the 1969 Treasure Chest.
